Dear Denny,

The admission selection committee in the College of Engineering has reviewed your application for admission to Cornell University for the fall of 2023. I am writing to let you know that while we are unable to give you a final decision at this time, we are pleased to offer you a place on our wait list.

I realize that you were hoping for a final decision, but we hope that you will remain interested in Cornell University. Please know that the admissions selection committee reached this difficult decision only after extensive deliberation. Cornell's admissions process was especially competitive this year given the number of applications received. Selecting a first-year class of 3,441 students from well over 68,000 applicants was a most formidable challenge. Although we would like very much to have you in the first-year class, enrollment limitations make it impossible for us to offer you admission at this time.

Please complete our Wait List Reply Form by April 10 to let us know if you would like to be considered for admission should additional openings become available. We do not know how many students we might be able to admit from the wait list; such offers are made during May and June. If you elect to remain on the wait list we will contact you after May 2 to provide you with an update. In the meantime, you will also find important information about our wait list on this site.

I hope that you will choose to remain on our waiting list and that we will, ultimately, have good news for you.

Sincerely,
