Temple's Estimated Financial Aid Cost of Attendance for 2023-2024

Your financial aid cost of attendance includes both billable charges from the University and indirect costs to assist you in planning your budget. Billable charges are invoiced by Temple University, whereas indirect costs are not billed by the University. Indirect costs are meant to provide you with an estimate of the educational expenses you might incur while attending. Please note housing and meals are only charged to your student account if you choose to live on-campus and/or select a meal plan.

We encourage you to utilize the University's Tuition Calculator to develop your own budget. This calculator allows you to view the different tuition, housing and meal plan options.

This is not your Temple University bill. This is an offer of financial aid that includes an estimate of the cost to attend the University for planning purposes. For information regarding official billing notifications and the due date schedule, visit the Bursar's Office website.

Any full tuition scholarship offer amounts remain estimated until the University's Board of Trustees meets in July to confirm the upcoming year's tuition rates. All full tuition scholarship amounts will be updated towards the beginning of each semester, and all Temple Academic Merit scholarship funding is restricted to tuition only.

Financial Aid Options to Pay Your Estimated Balance Due

Work Study

Work Study is a need-based opportunity that offers students the option to secure a job on/off campus and be paid directly for the hours worked. This is not grant funding that applies to billable charges at the University. Students hired in a work study position receive funding in their bi-weekly paycheck to use for educational costs. Visit Federal Work Study section for information on work study job opportunities and to learn how to accept, reduce or decline this offer.

Federal Work Study	$1,500.00

TOTAL WORK STUDY

$1,500.00

Loans

Federal student loan funding is available and requires repayment. Federal student loan amounts are determined based on total completed credits, financial need and remaining eligibility. Visit the Educational Loans section for more information on federal student loans and learn how to accept, reduce or decline this offer.

Federal subsidized student loans are available to eligible undergraduate students who have demonstrated financial need. The federal government pays the interest on the loan during your enrollment as long as certain requirements are met.

Federal unsubsidized student loans are available to eligible undergraduate, graduate, and professional students, but in this case, the student does not have to demonstrate financial need to be eligible for the loan. You are responsible for paying all interest on the loan.

All loan funding is processed for the full year, and is split evenly between semesters. For information on the Federal PLUS loan and private student loan options, visit Educational Loans section

Loans are offered based on Fall and Spring Semesters

Federal Subsidized Loan $3,500.00

Federal Unsubsidized Loan $2,000.00

TOTAL LOANS

$5,500.00

Actual loan disbursement amounts can vary based on loan fees
